Premier vows no HST, gas tax hike for transit

Few other details. Wynne says budget will reveal plans to finance $50B Big Move

Premier Kathleen Wynne has taken increased gasoline tax and HST off the table, but road tolls are very much in play as the Liberals search for ways to pay for transit.

While Wynne also insisted her government wouldn't raise income taxes on middle earners, her office refused to define the earning threshold for "middle-income." That suggests personal income taxes could be going up for some Ontarians.

It would be the first income-tax hike since 2012, when then-premier Dalton McGuinty imposed a two per cent surtax on 23,000 people earning $500,000 and up.

That surtax brings in $470 million annually, but lowering the threshold to $200,000 or $300,000 would bring in a lot more to the treasury.

"I am the premier who is dedicated to creating that revenue stream," Wynne said.

The premier refused to specify what other taxes, tolls and fees would be raised for Metrolinx's $50-billion Big Move plan for the Greater Toronto and Hamilton Area.

But Wynne said "make no mistake" that the spring budget will include ways to finance the massive transit project. She added that tolls for high-occupancy lanes are in the mix.

Allegations

"This is a pre-election mirage intended solely to get the Liberals past the next vote."

Tory MPP Vic Fedeli (Nipissing), saying Wynne simply can't be believed when it comes to promising not to raise taxes.

Wynne accused the opposition Tories and New Democrats of mischief by insisting that the Liberal government planned to hike gas tax and HST.

"I had said all along that funding has to be fair," she said, adding, "I am not going to ask the people in North Bay to pay for transit in the GTA.... That has never been part of our plan." TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Donations sought to bring photog's body home

Facing a whopping $20,000 bill to recover and transport the body of freelance photographer Ali Mustafa, his grieving family is appealing for donations.

Mustafa, a 29-year-old Toronto journalist working in Syria, was killed by Syrian government airstrikes alongside 13 others in the rebel-held area of Aleppo on Sunday.

According to the website soliciting donations, the family has taken out a loan to cover the cost of bringing Mustafa's body to Toronto, as well as his burial. The money is especially needed, it says, because Mustafa did not have the financial protections of a journalist working for a news organization.

Mustafa's sister, Justina Rosa Botelho, told The Associated Press shortly after his death that her brother had wanted to document the horrors of Syria's civil war.

"He just wanted the world to know about human rights and all the horrible things going on down there," Botelho said. "He was passionate for the world to know."

Donations can be made through York University's Ontario Public Interest Research Group or by emailing opirg@yorku.ca.

Details of dangerous rail shipments held back

Confidential data. CN has met with Toronto Fire officials to discuss emergency measures

CN and Toronto Fire are keeping secret the percentage of rail cars that passed through the city last year containing dangerous goods, as well as the list of the most hazardous commodities that were on board.

The railway company said it gave the data to senior Toronto Fire officials and the director of the Office of Emergency Management at a Dec. 12 meeting.

The company is meeting with municipalities in order to provide information on how to work together in case of an emergency, said CN spokesman Jim Feeny.

Presentation document

- The Torstar News Service obtained a censored copy of the CN presentation Thursday. Nearly all of the 18 pages remain the same for each municipality and touch on topics such as emergency measures, CN's safety record and the types of products that are made with the dangerous goods transported by the company.
- Page 10, which is nearly blank in the copy sent to the Torstar News Service, is titled "Your Community," and would normally show the percentage of CN rail cars containing dangerous goods that passed through the municipality in 2013, as well the most common hazardous goods on board.

The meetings, which include a presentation by a CN dangerous-goods officer, are a direct result of the Lac-Mégantic disaster in July, when a train carrying crude oil derailed, and the explosion that ensued killed 47 people.

Toni Vigna, Toronto Fire division chief of policy, project and public information, who was at the meeting with CN, said she could not recall the percentage being presented but she was "sure" a copy of the presentation was received.

"Even if I had a copy of the presentation in front of me, I wouldn't release the information," she said. "All the statistics are meant to be confidential."

Feeny said "due to security concerns," the railway company wants the data kept secret. When pressed, he said "the ordinary citizen is not a concern at all, but there may be interests that could use this information contrary to the public good."

Nevertheless, Hamilton fire Chief Rob Simonds publicly revealed on Wednesday that seven out of every 100 CN rail cars that passed through Hamilton in 2013 contained dangerous goods.

Feeny said that on a national level, about 10 per cent of all products moved by CN each year are dangerous goods. He said CN freights one to two trains a day through Toronto.

Time to dust off your leprechaun outfit

It's that time o' year again... Don some green and come out to watch the annual St. Patrick's Day parade on Sunday

The next big reason to party? St. Patrick's Day. On March 17, the world will be celebrating the lucky Irish festival.

Here in Toronto, half a million spectators wearing some little shred of green are expected to line the 27th annual St. Patrick's Day Parade route between Bloor Street and Queen Street at Nathan Philips Square (see map), on Sunday, March 16.

The Toronto parade is a festival of St. Patrick, Ireland, Canada and multiculturalism.

Katie Taylor

There will be colourful, spectacular floats from a variety of cultural groups.

Last year's parade featured 70 marching sections and 28 bands.

This year, there will be an Olympic gold medalist Grand Marshal (Katie Taylor, a boxer, who is the current Irish, European, World and Olympic Champion), dancers from the Native Canadian Centre and marchers from Scouts Canada.

Taylor, 27, was also the flag bearer for Ireland during the Opening Ceremonies at the 2012 London Olympics and went on to win a gold medal. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Want to paint the town green? Here's top spots to party south of the border

Travel website Cheapflights.ca has compiled a list of some top St. Patrick's Day party towns:

Boston
About a million celebrants flock to South Boston each year and new Mayor Martin J. Walsh may be there, too, as talks about including gay organizations in the festivities after a two-decade ban became news. It's the second-largest parade in the U.S.

New York
The world's oldest and largest parade is run entirely by volunteers. There has been a St. Patrick's Day parade in New York since March 17, 1762.

Chicago
There are several miracles associated with St. Patrick. He converted the Pagan Irish to Christianity, brought people back from the dead (as well as a horse and some mad cows owned by his aunt). So, it makes sense that a river might miraculously turn green for a few hours on March 17.

Ford 'no role model,' says Chow

Mayoral bid. Scandal-plagued Rob Ford faces left-wing challenge as Olivia Chow enters race

Veteran left-wing politician Olivia Chow kicked off her campaign to unseat the city's infamous mayor Thursday by alluding to his numerous scandals but refusing to discuss their potential impact on the race.

Speaking to a packed church hall, the former city councillor and federal MP — already considered a front-runner — criticized Rob Ford for his "disappointing" leadership.

"He is no role model for my granddaughters," Chow said. "We deserve better."

Chow made no mention of Ford's numerous, highly publicized scandals: crack-smoking, alcoholic binges, profane rants, ties to suspected drug traffickers and an ongoing police investigation into his activities.

Asked about the potential impact on the mayoralty race of Ford's conduct — the fodder of headlines and TV comedy across Canada and internationally — Chow dodged. "It's not just a scandal, it's really his failed policies."

Ford has said he's not concerned at facing off against Chow, bragging instead about his solid fiscal management and dedicated service to his constituents.

Given his notoriety, what would normally be a local political tussle focused on gridlock, public transit or social housing now seems destined to play out before a much broader audience.

"The world will be watching," said Myer Siemiatycki, a political science professor at Ryerson University.

"The world knows about Mayor Ford and some across the world might wonder, 'Can someone with this kind of record actually get themselves re-elected?'"

Ford's re-election will depend on whether he hangs on to his die-hard supporters, colloquially known as the "Ford Nation," and can pick up votes from those who believe in his self-professed tax-busting record, observers said.

Ford himself was unfazed, saying earlier this week: "My 'Ford Nation' people aren't budging and we're doing great."

The world will be watching

"The world knows about Mayor Ford and some across the world might wonder, 'Can someone with this kind of record actually get themselves re-elected?' "

Myer Siemiatycki, Ryerson University

Rob Drummond, political science professor emeritus at York University, pegged Ford's bedrock support at somewhere between 20 and 30 per cent. "I'm astounded at how long he's been able to sustain the support that he has," he said.

To win, Chow will have to hope the conservative vote splits among Ford and his rival right-wing candidates.

Chow, widow of the late New Democrat icon Jack Layton, is the first heavyweight contender on the left to challenge for the Oct. 27 vote.

What's clear, political observers said, is that she has the pedigree and street cred to be a formidable opponent.

"She brings a very distinctive record, persona, positioning," Siemiatycki said.

Chow's main challenges over the next seven months will be to strip away suburban votes from Ford, and counter perceptions of New Democrats as incorrigibly tax and spend.

In her speech that came a day after she resigned as an MP, Chow shook off any suggestion she's a downtown elite — a phrase Ford often throws at opponents.

She played up her roots as a hardworking immigrant to Canada, noting her speech was given in the same inner city neighbourhood of St. James Town in which she grew up. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Food truck rules too restrictive: Ford

Zane Caplansky, outside the Sony Centre with his food truck Thunderin' Thelma last summer. COLIN MCCONNELL/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Supporters of Toronto's food truck movement have a new — if unexpected — ally at city hall: Mayor Rob Ford.

The mayor was asked about the new street food bylaw recommendations from city staff.

Ford said he supports loosening the notoriously restrictive rules and that the latest proposal doesn't go far enough.

At present, food trucks aren't allowed to sell on city streets. They can sell in private parking lots, but only for 10 minutes at a time. The new regulations, which will go to council next month, would allow trucks to set up anywhere with "pay and display" street parking, provided vendors are 50 metres away from a bricks and mortar restaurant.

But there's a catch.

Bylaw restriction

"I don't like how the BIAs or councillors can kick (vendors) out of their area at any given time. That ... kills it."

Toronto Mayor Rob Ford

City staff has also said that Business Improvement Areas — which are largely made up of restaurant owners — and local councillors can request that food trucks be banned from their neighbourhoods.

Ford said that restriction could jeopardize the point of the review, which was to make it easier for food truck drivers to operate. "I don't like how the BIAs or councillors can kick them out of their area at any given time. That ... kills it," Ford said.

Under the current proposal, BIAs and councillors don't have an outright veto, just a vote, which was enough to anger food truck owners.

Zane Caplansky, owner of Caplansky's Deli on College St. who also runs a food truck, said he plans to take the city to court if it doesn't back off the BIA loophole. "That provision will gut the entire initiative," Caplansky said.

Restaurant owners have expressed concern in the past that their business would be hurt if a food truck set up nearby. The mayor said his attitude is: "The more the merrier."

Natural gas. Cold winter means price set to soar

The severe winter is driving the price of natural gas higher for householders with Enbridge Gas Distribution.

The higher price will mean a $400 a year increase in gas costs for a typical household that uses 3,000 cubic metres a year, says Enbridge's Jamie LeBlanc. That household is now paying about $1,000 a year.

The new price doesn't apply to householders with fixed price contracts from energy retailers.

The Ontario Energy Board must approve the increase, which Enbridge hopes will take effect April 1.

"Because it's been cold across North America, the price of natural gas has been quite high, particularly the latter part of January and most of February," LeBlanc said.

"Based on our data, it's been one of the three coldest winters in the last 25 years. It's been 22 per cent colder in the GTA this year than it was last year."

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

How it works

Stocks of gas in storage have been depleted, and gas companies are buying more gas on the open market with more volatile prices.

- The current wholesale price is about double the normal level.
- For customers who buy their gas directly from Enbridge, the company sets a price every three months. It isn't supposed to make a profit or loss on the sale of the gas itself; its profit comes from charging a fee for delivering the gas.
- Because Enbridge didn't anticipate such a cold winter, it underestimated the price of gas at the January setting, and is now trying to recover its costs.

CREATING PRIDE IN THE TTC FOR RIDERS AND EMPLOYEES ALIKE

CEO
TORONTO TRANSIT COMMISSION

The TTC's 13,000 employees play a critical role in the delivery of our vision of a transit system that makes Toronto proud.

As stated on many occasions, modernization of the TTC means much more than the introduction of shiny new vehicles – we want you to feel valued as a customer and for every interaction with the TTC to be a positive, professional one. Our processes, therefore, must be customer-led, among a corporate culture where employees are motivated to excel in their role at all levels.

As part of the introduction of the TTC's Five-Year Corporate Plan, I conducted more than 80 employee town hall meetings so that I could outline to those on the frontline exactly what our plan entails, as it is down to them if we are to successfully deliver on our vision.

The good news is that the overwhelming majority of employees have a genuine pride in the TTC and a desire to provide excellent service. So many employees have devoted their entire working lives to public service. We can and must tap into that deep well of talent to progressively improve the quality of service.

I am a great believer that staff performance and morale are influenced by their working environment. To that end, I am putting emphasis on changing the management culture at the TTC so that employees feel well-led and motivated to succeed.

Positive feedback from our customers is also an important motivator. The next time you receive great service from a TTC employee, let them know – or let us know by calling 416-393-3030. It really does make a difference.

Harlem disaster. Mayor hopes to 'find others still alive' as rescue workers search overnight through smouldering wreckage

Rescuers working amid cold, gusty winds and billowing smoke pulled four additional bodies overnight from the rubble of two Manhattan apartment buildings, as the death toll rose Thursday to at least seven from a gas leak-triggered explosion that reduced the area to a pile of smashed bricks, splinters and mangled metal.

The explosion Wednesday morning in East Harlem injured more than 60 people, with searchers still trying to locate others a day later.

Mayor Bill de Blasio said Thursday that the city was "hoping to find others still alive" and then "to determine exactly what happened here."

Crews used generator-powered floodlights and thermal imaging cameras to identify heat spots — bodies or pockets of fire — at the site. Police guarding the scene wore masks and neighbourhood residents covered faces with scarfs amid the thick, acrid air.

Construction equipment with iron jaws picked up the smouldering debris, first depositing it on the pavement, then hoisting it onto trucks that hauled it away. The debris included structural beams, pieces of windows and residents' belongings.

Workers initially were hampered from fully accessing the building space because of a sinkhole caused by a subsurface water main break. The weather also posed a challenge, with temperatures dropping into the 20s and rain falling overnight.

Malaysia Airlines. Search widens for missing plane

Malaysian authorities expanded their search for a missing plane westward toward India on Thursday, saying it may have flown for several hours after its last contact with the ground.

That scenario would make finding the Boeing 777 a vastly more difficult task, and raises the possibility that searchers have been looking in the wrong place for the plane and its 239 passengers and crew since it disappeared early Saturday.

Search planes were sent Thursday to search an area off the southern tip of Vietnam where Chinese satellite images showed three suspected floating objects, but they saw only ocean.

"There is nothing. We went there, there is nothing," said acting Malaysian Transport Minister Hishammuddin Hussein. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

China. Police arrest man who runs rights website

Police in China on Thursday took away a veteran activist who runs a rights monitoring website, and seized his computers and mobile phones, the campaigner's mother said.

Eleven police officers turned up at Huang Qi's home in the city of Chengdu and produced a summons for Huang before taking him away, said his mother, Pu Wenqing.

Huang founded a rights monitoring website and has long been one of China's most outspoken advocates for the rights of people who try to bring their grievances to the attention of the government but often face police harassment. He served a five-year prison sentence starting in 2003 on subversion charges linked to politically sensitive articles posted on his site.

Ukraine. Canada offering $220M in aid to Ukraine

Foreign Affairs Minister John Baird says Canada will contribute $220 million to an international effort to stabilize the finances of Ukraine.

He says Canada is prepared to work with the European Union, the United States and the International Monetary Fund to help Ukraine.

The minister says Ukraine seems to have enough money to keep afloat for a few months, giving the international community time to work out some solutions.

Baird says it's crucial to give economic support to Ukraine during its current tensions with Russia, but Canada won't be writing blank cheques.

He says IMF advisers on the ground in Ukraine will make recommendations on what level of support the country needs. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Backbencher quits, calls Redford a bully

Disrespectful. Former cabinet minister under Stelmach says it's 'the way she treats people'

A backbencher has announced he is leaving Alberta Premier Alison Redford's caucus because he can no longer work with her.

Len Webber told reporters in Calgary on Thursday that Redford is a disrespectful bully who throws temper tantrums and flies into fits of rage.

"I can no longer sit as a government member. I cannot return to work and sit on the same side as long as Alison Redford is sitting at the helm."

Temper tantrums

"She's just really not a nice lady."

Len Webber, Alberta MLA, about Alberta Premier Alison Redford.

He said he plans to sit as an independent. He had already announced his intention to seek the Conservative nomination in the new federal riding of Calgary Confederation.

Redford offered "no reaction" to Webber's comments as she left the building where the Tory caucus was meeting Thursday.

Her deputy premier, Dave Hancock, emerged a short time later to say the caucus stands behind its leader. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Quebec election

PQ candidate out after offensive Facebook post

A Parti Québécois candidate pulled out of the provincial election campaign Thursday after posting a graphically worded anti-Islamic message on his Facebook page.

Jean Carriere stepped aside after the photo started to make the rounds on social media Wednesday.

The photo was of a half-naked white woman holding up her middle finger with the words "(expletive) Islam."

Trudeau bars candidate to avoid infighting

Justin Trudeau is launching a pre-emptive strike to prevent Liberals in nomination contests from resuming the toxic infighting that almost destroyed the party.

Christine Innes was told she will not be allowed to run for a nomination after complaints that her husband, former MP and junior cabinet minister Tony Ianno, has been using "intimidation and bullying"to lure supporters from newly elected Chrystia Freeland.

Pot job fair stokes high interest

Denver. Line of job applicants snaked around corner as legal pot business lights up big profits

When Tim Cullen was opening his first marijuana business four years ago, the high school biology teacher-turned-pot entrepreneur struggled to get resumés and references from job applicants.

"Everyone's experience was on the black market," Cullen said. Now, he said, "it's come out of the closet."

Out of the closet, down the street and around the corner. That's where the line of hopefuls stretched Thursday outside a central Denver office building that was hosting a marijuana industry job fair.

Cullen, who owns two retail marijuana shops and is a partner in a company that makes hash oil and another that makes vaporizers, was among representatives from about a dozen businesses reviewing applications.

O.penVAPE, Cullen's vaporizers company, organized the fair to meet its own growing staffing needs and help others in the industry, said company spokesman Todd Mitchem.

Voters in Colorado and Washington approved sales of marijuana for recreational use in 2012, and recreational sales began first in Colorado, in January. Among the employers at the job fair was a tour company looking for guides to help pot tourists navigate Colorado's newest industry.

Money, money, money

This week, in the world's first such accounting, the Colorado Department of Revenue reported the state made roughly $2 million US in marijuana taxes in January; that is expected to grow as more retailers are licensed.

Amazon raises price of Prime memberships

Amazon is raising the price of its popular Prime membership in the U.S. to $99 US per year, an increase of $20 US.

It's the first price increase since the online retailer introduced Prime, which includes two-day free shipping on many products, in 2005.

Amazon has spent heavily to grow its business and expand into new areas, from movie streaming to e-readers and groceries, and it has accomplished that goal.

THE WORLD ACCORDING TO KEVIN BACON

THE METRO LIST

Neil Morton

1 #whileTwitterwasdown. Twitter went down briefly Tuesday, but it felt like an eternity to users. By the time it came back, #whileTwitterwasdown was trending with gems like, "I tried to get real people on the street to follow me, but they just wouldn't. Elites probably," and "I was promoted at work, made six friends, and started a family." All I did was write six books, three of which were adapted to the big screen.

2 First kiss. A beautiful video of 20 strangers meeting and kissing for the first time went viral, with more than 20 million views. When people found out it was actually a fashion film by the label Wren, it didn't really dampen spirits. After all, it really was strangers kissing. And the vid really was beautiful. Plus, we're used to product endorsements on everything.

3 Bachelor finale. The finale had the narcissistic Juan Pablo trending for being such a self-serving idiot. Even his parents warned Clare and Nikki about him. In the end, he sort of picked Nikki. But we all know that the person Juan Pablo loves the most in the world is himself. That's who he should have proposed to: Juan Pablo.

4 Funny or Die. To promote his health-care plan, President Obama sat down for an interview with actor Zach Galifianakis on his comedy web series Between Two Ferns on Funny or Die. Boy did it work. White House senior communications adviser Tara McGuinness tweeted "FunnyorDie.com is the #1 source of referrals to HealthCare.gov right now." Laughter really is the best medicine.

5 Strombo. Hockey Night in Canada named him as their primary host and anchor, taking over from Ron MacLean, who will have a diminished role next year. Lost in the hoopla was the announcement Strombo's terrific show George Stroumboulopoulos Tonight will be cancelled at season's end. I will miss it big time.

6 #AskBaird. Canada's Foreign Minister John Baird hosted a live Twitter chat where you could ask him questions. This was refreshing for a politician to be this transparent in real time about what Canada is doing on the international stage. Baird was self-deprecating, saying in one tweet, "suggest trying someone else for cooking & fashion tips."

7 Kevin Bacon. A YouTube video titled Kevin Explains the '80s to Millennials garnered nearly two million views as a straight-faced Bacon tried to explain what the '80s and its VCRs and parachute pants meant. "You want to know my favourite app? Rubik's Cube," Bacon says. Google that, millennials, to find out what it is.

8 Jack Bauer. It was announced the iconic character will be coming back to TV four years after the series finale. This time Jack is an exiled ex-CIA agent who has to prevent the assassination of the U.S. president — and prevent a world war. Yes, life is never easy for Jack Bauer. But it is for Kiefer Sutherland.

9 Daylight saving time. The first week adjusting to daylight saving is always a nag, but all the more so when the most famous mayor in the world — yes, Mayor Ford — tweets out "Daylight saving time starts this evening, turn your clocks back and change batteries in smoke alarms." For the rest of this year, Ford will be two hours behind the rest of the world.

10 22-pound house cat attacks. It read like an Onion article — a 911 call was placed by a family whose 22-pound Himalayan cat, Lux, who had a "history of violence," was holding them "hostage" inside their bedroom after attacking their baby. Don't worry: The police caught the grumpy cat after it attempted "to flee custody" by climbing on top of the fridge.

11 www. Remember when the telephone turned 25? The radio? The TV? I don't either. But I will remember when the World Wide Web did — March 12, 2014. Seriously though, can you believe it's already been around a quarter-century? Before we know it, Twitter will seem ancient when we're beaming around space tweeting our adventures.

Man-of-war can kill fish and humans

It looks like a bejewelled silk scarf but you'd be a fool to wear it. This image shows the Portuguese man-of-war, a sea creature whose stinging tentacles are capable of killing fish and even humans. Eric Röttinger's shot is winner of the non-scientific category of the annual cover contest by molecular biology journal EMBO. METRO metres is how long the venomous tendrils of a Portuguese man-of-war can extend to — that's roughly four lengths of an average-sized city bus.

Too many tendrils

Ten metres is the average length for this seafaring creature's appendages. The tendrils' venom-filled capsules, or nematocysts, are capable of paralyzing and killing fish, and on rare occasions humans. Some people have described a sting from the man-of-war as a feeling like being struck by a lightning bolt.

Blob tag

- Biology. Despite its appearance, the Portuguese man-of-war (Physalia physalis) is neither a jellyfish nor even a single animal. It's actually a siphonophore, a floating colony of multiple organisms working in symbiosis with each other.
- Structure. It comprises four individual polyps (or organisms): one forming a gas-filled bladder that floats on the sea surface and looks like an old warship (by which the creature gets its nautical name), one that catches small fish with its long tendrils, and two others that are in charge of digestion and reproduction.
- Habitat. Found in groups of 1,000, floating in warm waters throughout the world's oceans.

Synopsis

Based on the most successful racing video game franchise ever, Need for Speed is Aaron "Breaking Bad" Paul's first lead in a feature. He plays Tobey Marshall, a speed-demon mechanic, jailed for a crime he did not commit. Out of prison with revenge against adversary Dino Brewster (Dominic Cooper) on his mind, he finagles a spot at the De Leon, a high-octane underground race that makes the Cannonball Run look like a Go-Kart sprint. You just know it's only a matter of time until someone says, "We'll settle this behind the wheel." Between him and the race, however, are miles of hard road, bounty hunters and police. Steve Gow sits in for Mark Breslin this week.

The cars are the stars

Need for Speed. Action-packed racing tale based on a video game not one for the intellectual crowd

Reel Guys

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

Richard: Steve, remember the Mazda commercials that were on a few years ago? I felt like the kid from those ads was sitting on my shoulder whispering "zoom, zoom" into my ear for the entire running time of The Hot Wheels Movie, er…. Need for Speed. This is a fast paced car race movie that zips along as quickly as you'd hope a movie with the word speed in the title would, but character wise, it's not quite as fast or furious as you might like. The cars are the stars, while the characters are largely left in the dust. What did you think?

SG: Yes, the way they're upstaged by the racing sequences, the term "vehicular manslaughter" could easily apply to the actors. Sure, Aaron Paul showed us he had chops in Breaking Bad but that only makes the choice of playing a gravelly-voiced, vengeance-seeking street car racer all the more curious. After all, as much as Need For Speed tries to design depth in its characters, nobody in the thriller rises above conveniently routine. Or all that interesting.

RC: I liked the race scenes. They feel authentic and by and large done by brave speed demon stunt drivers without the use of CGI. They're exciting, pedal-to-the-metal sequences that put the audience in the driver's seat. You have to wonder about glorifying the romance of reckless street racing, but the movie isn't a commercial for vehicular mayhem. There are some wild rides, but there are also consequences for many of the drivers and their need for speed. I just wish the characters were stronger. It says something when the movie's most interesting character — the eccentric millionaire the Monarch, played by Michael Keaton — never gets behind the wheel of a car.

SG: He was definitely working the same oddball over-the-top angles as Nicolas Cage. Imogen Poots (That Awkward Moment) was appealing enough as a British assistant of the car's owner who hitchhikes along with Paul for the nationwide ride. However, I couldn't help thinking how contrived the entire plot was. Then again, I suppose that shouldn't be surprising considering the story was culled from a video game — albeit a very successful video game.

RC: Need for Speed isn't Downton Abbey. It's a car crazy story where characters take a backseat to the action, but if you know what a Two Lane Grasshopper is, then you'll probably get a kick out of the driving scenes.

SG: This movie definitely isn't for graduates of Juilliard's drama program. It's for high-octane gearheads who want to stuff their faces with over-buttered popcorn and watch innocent bystanders and cops get taken out in the careless (cut cunningly choreographed) act of illegal street racing. It does a fine job there but I'm not sure I'll remember much else about Need for Speed by tomorrow morning.

The Husband

Director. Bruce McDonald

Stars. Maxwell McCabe-Lokos, Sarah Allen

The Husband sees McDonald returning to his story-telling roots with an Odyssean everyman story about the quest to do the right thing instead of the easy thing and to overcome heartbreak and humiliation in love. A raw drama about a man named Henry left to care for his infant son when his wife is imprisoned for cheating on him with a minor, The Husband takes an honest look at a character rendered utterly humiliated by the person he loves.

Divergent based in reality

Plenty of parallels. Young actor Theo James talks about the story's mass appeal with young people

RICHARD CROUSE
scene@metronews.ca

Theo James stars in Divergent, which opens next Friday. CONTRIBUTED

The new young adult movie Divergent declares, "The future belongs to those who know where they belong."

In the film, a Big Brother style government has divided the post-apocalyptic Chicago into five factions: the altruistic Abnegation sect, the peace loving Amity, the "I cannot tell a lie" Candor group, the militaristic arm Dauntless and the smarty-pants Erudite.

In the middle of this muddle is Four, played by Theo James, a Dauntless warrior with a sensitive side. He's a mentor of sorts and love interest to Tris (Shailene Woodley), a 16-year-old who has recently pledged to Dauntless. During her grueling training, Four helps her disguise the fact that she is "divergent," a person who cannot be pigeonholed into just one designation.

James, the English-born star, beat out half of young Hollywood for the role, which was made popular in the wildly successful Divergent series of books. Sales of more than five million copies puts the novels into Hunger Games territory, but why are they so popular with teens? "I think there are two things to summarize it," says James, a philosophy graduate from the University of Nottingham.

"One, on a generalist level, it's a good story to be able to be involved in in the same way as some others in the genre are. The faction system is a good thing for young people to grab hold of because they can question themselves. They can say, 'Which one would I be in?' There are cliques in high school, and it has those kinds of ramifications.

"There are other high school parallels; it's a big assembly hall, there is a kind of teacher, there is a kind of ceremony, which is almost like graduating from high school.

"Then there is the college era, being in Dauntless and then choosing what kind of job you're going to go into. It has those fun things to be able to latch on to. On top of that there is the fantasy level of being in a world which is relatable because it is Chicago. You can see these landmarks, so it makes sense, but then it is the future so there is something more fantastic about it. As a result of that, there is also a deeper world you can step into.

"Then, you wonder about the generation now. Growing up they are constantly hearing the conversation about depleting resources and all these kind of environmental things."

Dear Fannie

Advice for your life with Fannie Szinessy

Dear Fannie,

I am a 35-year-old father of an 18-month-old child. For obvious reasons I'm going to try to keep this pretty ambiguous, but let's say I work in advertising. Last year, a lapse in judgement by my wife left me to raise my son alone.
She is now serving a 9 month prison sentence.
For sleeping with a 14-year-old boy.
Who was her student.

Since then I've been in some kind of holding pattern, albeit a negative one, that seems to be aiming toward a downward spiral. I can't face my co-workers, my family, or my wife. Here's my problem: She gets out of jail in two weeks and I haven't decided whether or not I want to stay with her. Am I nuts? Is it crazy to think of remaining loyal after such betrayal?! I am humiliated and filled with resentment, but I can't exactly go kick this kid's ass, can I? Somewhere deep inside, I'm afraid I still love her. What the hell should I do?

— Henry

Dear Henry,

Wow.

Since you work in advertising you already know the simplest message is the most effective. I can't say 'dump her and move on', but I also can't say 'love will prevail' because we all know that's been proven wrong countless times.

What I can say is this: Face the issue. Have you discussed the very source of all your anxiety? Talk to your wife. Talk to your family. Talk to a shrink. Don't exacerbate things by burying your head in the sand.

Try to relax, find the time to take your mind off it for a couple hours a day. Go for a run, meet up with a friend, play some squash — or just go see a movie.

— Keep on smilin', Fannie

Are you up for watching Shia in the buff?

Nymphomaniac. One of Metro's intrepid reviewers checks out the latest from Lars von Trier and shares what he learned about sex

CHRIS ALEXANDER
scene@metronews.ca

By now many of you may have gotten wind of the latest "event" movie from Danish enfant terrible Lars von Trier, he of the malevolent mind bender Antichrist, the Bjork-starring anti-musical Dancer in the Dark and the lush Melancholia.

When von Trier releases a film, the cinema world races around him in circles, debating furiously, cheering and jeering in equal measure. He knows this and clearly loves to push boundaries and buttons.

With his latest opus, the pornographic masterwork Nymphomaniac, the filmmaker doesn't just push boundaries, he decimates them. The movie stars von Trier's muse, actress and pop star Charlotte Gainsbourg as Joe, a self-described sex addict whose lifelong free-fall into carnality has both liberated her and led her to lubricated ruin.

After dropping jaws all over Europe, the five-hour Nymphomaniac opens in select Canadian markets next Friday, ready to shake our sensibilities with is cavalcade of extreme and explicit couplings. This writer was invited to the Toronto press screening last week, along with most of Hogtown's finest critics. It was an elephantine affair, beginning at 9 a.m. and climaxing at 2 p.m. and was indeed an "event", complete with intermission to provide a breather from the non-stop emissions. The movie is, of course, more than just a star-studded sex film and is in fact, very edifying,

Here then, related in as family-friendly a fashion as possible, are five things I learned while stuffed into a sweaty cinema watching Nymphomaniac…

Shia LaBeouf leaves nothing to the imagination in Nymphomaniac.
CONTRIBUTED

The version we're getting in Canada is cut

Before the screening, the publicist announced that Canada will indeed be getting the slightly truncated edit of Nymphomaniac, to which some critics sneered.

"Don't worry," the smirking PR assured, "you'll still get plenty of 'stuff' to look at."

Sex is like fly fishing

The framework of Nymphomaniac consists of a battered Joe relating her salacious life story to a kindly bachelor (played by von Trier regular Stellan Skarsgård) who convincingly draws every one of her penetrating anecdotes back to the art of fly-fishing, complete with beautifully shot footage of the hobby sport.

Shia LaBeouf has nothing to hide

He may be marauding around Hollywood with a bag on his head, but troubled Nymphomaniac co-star LaBeouf leaves no other part of his anatomy to the imagination here, dressed as he is in nothing more than a smile for half the film's running time.

Mini-muffins taste great post coitus

During the intermission between Nymphomaniac Part One and Part Two, the publicist treated us wobbly-kneed critics to a spread of mini-muffins, juice and coffee. It was odd discussing LaBeouf's beef and Gainsbourg's fluid performance while huffing down bran, but it was all part of the experience.

The silent duck

Unfortunately, I cannot elaborate on this plot-point, the revelation of which stretches more than the imagination. To learn more, you'll just have to see the film.

And I heartily suggest you do see the film. Because the beauty of Nymphomaniac and all of von Trier's work is that hidden inside its outrageous exterior is something profound, poetic and deeply human.

20 years later. New book examines the lasting legacy of Kurt Cobain and Nirvana

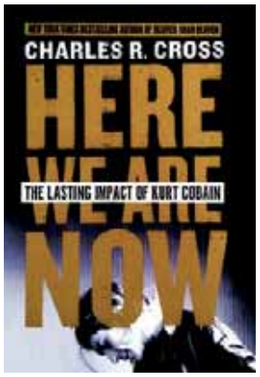
scene@metronews.ca

On the afternoon of April 8, 1994, news came that a body had been found in a greenhouse behind 171 Lake Washington Blvd. E. in Seattle. The victim had died of a self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head.

Twenty years later, we're still fascinated by Kurt Cobain, his music and his legacy. Charles R. Cross, author of the Cobain biography Heavier Than Heaven, tries to explain why Kurt and Nirvana still matter with a new book, Here We Are Now: The Lasting Impact of Kurt Cobain.



If you were there, you know why Kurt matters. But if you weren't...
It's been two decades, so virtually almost everyone in college today wasn't alive when Kurt was a current artist. So the debate does spring up. Why does Nirvana matter? Who was Kurt? And what is it about this music that is significant in our cultural history? That's what I attempt to tackle in this new book.

So how do we not sound like that grumpy old guy who's always yelling at us to get off his lawn?
Well, you DO sound old! But I think there's a great nostalgia for that era. Rarely am I at a show where I feel that the whole axis of the universe is tilting. And that's the way it felt with a lot of these Seattle bands in the late '80s and early '90s. The music these men created has ramifications that are being felt today.

To look at the impact of just Nevermind — an album that has sold somewhere north of 30 million copies — it is truly extraordinary.

You wonder how many people who bought that record started a band because there's so much of the sound of Nirvana that you can hear in the groups that followed.

Kurt Cobain was the front man of Nirvana until his suicide in 1994.
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE

And we can't just stop with music, can we?
One of the things that I discovered is that grunge is now a term within fashion. If you go to nordstrom.com and type in grunge, you'll find maybe a hundred items for sale. The word has had a longer life in the fashion industry than in the music industry.

Will there ever be another Kurt?
There was something about Kurt's star charisma that we haven't seen in music — and in that way, he was like John Lennon, Bono and Bruce Springsteen. That's why I think Kurt's music stands above all others in the last 20 or so years.

Here We Are Now: The Lasting Impact of Kurt Cobain will be out March 18 through HarperCollins.

Woodley got the OK from Lawrence for Divergent role

MELINDA TAUB
Metro World News

In any career, it's best to find yourself a mentor when you're just starting out — someone who's been where you are and can advise you.

However, if that career is "starring in a blockbuster trilogy based on bestselling books about a brave young girl thrust into a world of dystopian violence," your mentorship options are limited. To, oh, one other person.

Divergent star Shailene Woodley didn't let that stop her — she reached out to her young-adult-adaptation forebear, Jennifer Lawrence, before agreeing to star in Divergent. "I asked Jennifer Lawrence, 'Are you happy with your choice to take on The Hunger Games?'" Woodley revealed to Teen Vogue. "And she said she wouldn't change it for the world. She told me, 'There are some things — don't make a sex tape, don't do drugs, don't do things in public — that you wouldn't want other people judging you for. But this is the best decision you'll ever make.'"

That kind of sounds like Shailene Woodley also asked Jennifer Lawrence for advice on whether to make a sex tape. I'm glad Jennifer said "Nope." It sounds like Shailene has been very discreet, though: She says she's never hooked up on set. After the shoot wrapped, though? That's different. "Well, that might have happened on something...." she said.

Kirsten Dunst ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Someone's not happy to see Dunst and Hedlund's relationship in full Bloom

Things are getting serious between Kirsten Dunst and longtime boyfriend Garrett Hedlund — and that's apparently a problem for Orlando Bloom, who briefly dated his Elizabethtown co-star. "Kirsten wants to marry Garrett, and she was shocked when Orlando reached out to her and ripped Garrett apart for his hard-partying, bad boy ways," a source tells Radar Online. "Orlando was basically acting like a jealous boyfriend even though he hasn't been involved with Kirsten for years, and Kirsten called him out on it." Dunst and Hedlund met while filming On the Road and have been dating steadily since 2012. "Kirsten's pals believe she's found a real soul mate in Garrett, and her work and outlook on life have improved dramatically since they've been together," the source says. "They wonder why Orlando is trying to spoil her good time." Those pals do at least have some theories, though: "Orlando is in a bad place in his career and has seen roles that he wanted slip away to hunky younger actors like Garrett," the source offers. "Orlando's meddling, catty behaviour with Kirsten and Garrett is likely to continue until he has another lucky streak in his career. But Kirsten isn't letting anyone get between her and Garrett, least of all Orlando. She hopes to walk down the aisle with him."

Robin plays good father as cancelled shows mount up

Robin Thicke took some time out from his tour over the weekend and flew to Vancouver to spend time with estranged wife Paula Patton and their son, Julian, according to E! News. The recently separated pair seemed in good spirits, laughing together as Julian played at a playground. But maybe the trip didn't go as well as Thicke hoped it would, as he went on to cancel yet another show — this one at Ontario's Casino Rama — due to "unforeseen vocal issues," something that's plagued his tour since his split from Patton was announced. But he seemed fine Monday night in Los Angeles, celebrating his 37th birthday alongside Leonardo DiCaprio and a number of male pals.

Even though St. Patrick's Day isn't until Monday, I'm betting many of you will get the party started tonight and sashay your shillelagh into next week.

Since a quarter of Peter Rockwell comes from the Emerald Isle, I like a pint of green beer as much as the next semi-Irish guy. What the day really brings home to me is the volume of classic booze brands that call Ireland home.

Think Jameson whiskey, Baileys Irish Cream liqueur and, for the beer fans, Murphy's, Harp, and, of course, Guinness. All from a country that's just slightly larger than the province of New Brunswick. While you could choose any one of those (or a combo of a few) to toast St. Paddy, the real mover and shaker in Ireland is cider. No longer a simple summer sipper; the cider category has become a force to be reckoned with.

Magners Original Irish Cider (500 ml, $3.15 - $4.40) balances its apple goodness with a crisp, effervescence that's perfect with a celebratory serving of lamb stew, shepherd's pie or corn beef and cabbage. PRICES REFLECT RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. Trafford died of asphyxiation: Report

Media reports say a Canadian junior hockey player whose body was found in Michigan this week died from asphyxiation, which police believe to have been self-inflicted.

The reports say autopsy results for Terry Trafford, 20, were released Thursday — two days after the missing athlete was found in an SUV in the parking lot of a Walmart store in Saginaw Township. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Shut out in Sochi

Paralympics. Canada overpowered by U.S. in sledge hockey semi

There won't be a hockey sweep in Sochi.

Declan Farmer had two goals and an assist Thursday as the United States defeated Canada 3-0 in the sledge hockey semifinals at the Paralympic Winter Games.

It's a bitter pill to swallow for the Canadians, who were trying to become the first country to win the men's, women's and sledge hockey tournaments at an Olympic and Paralympic Games.

"We were tight. There's no secret that we weren't making crisp, on-the-tape passes, and that hurt us. At the same time, we had our chances," said Canadian captain Greg Westlake. "It seemed like we'd have this 10-bell chance at their end and then they'd come back and the puck would end up in our net."

Joshua Pauls added a goal and an assist for the U.S., while Steve Cash made 11 saves to get the shutout.

The Americans will face Russia in Saturday's gold-medal game at Shayba Arena after the hosts defeated Norway 4-0 in Thursday's other semifinal.

Corbin Watson stopped seven shots for Canada, which will play Norway for bronze on Saturday.

Gold medallists in 2006, Canada was also looking to avenge a disappointing fourth-place finish on home soil in Vancouver in 2010 and was perfect through three round-robin games, outscoring the opposition 15-1.

But on a night where nothing seemed to go their way, the Canadians failed to convert numerous chances in front of Cash, a trend that started in their 1-0 victory over the Czech Republic on Tuesday.

The Americans will play for gold for a second straight Paralympics after winning the tournament four years ago.

The U.S. was upset by Russia 2-1 in their final group game here to set up the semifinal against their bitter rivals.

Canada came in having won the 2013 world championship and world sledge hockey challenge — with both victories coming over the U.S. — but lost two of three exhibition meetings with the Americans in the lead-up to the Paralympics. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Soccer superstars set to collide in Seattle

Toronto FC's Michael Bradley and Jermain Defoe practice in Toronto ahead of their season-opener against the Sounders . NATHAN DENETTE/THE CANADIAN PRESS

When they were still youngsters, before finding success with the U.S. national team and playing in some of the top European leagues, Michael Bradley and Clint Dempsey were teammates at the Major League Soccer combine.

At that point, they were just hoping to have a professional career.

"We still joke about it now. ... We have a really good relationship on and off the field," Bradley said during a conference call this week. "I think everybody is able to see how important he is not only for the Seattle Sounders, but the national team."

Now as the stars of their teams in the MLS, Bradley and Dempsey are preparing to be foes on Saturday. That's when Bradley is expected to make his debut for Toronto FC against Dempsey's Seattle Sounders.

It's a matchup of two of the biggest names in MLS and two stalwarts of the U.S. national team just a few months away from the World Cup in Brazil. They are also the two most notable players to recently decide that returning to MLS in their prime from their respective European clubs was the correct move for their careers.

Bradley, still just 26, is part of a massive makeover in Toronto that also included the acquisition of former Tottenham striker Jermain Defoe and Brazilian goalkeeper Julio Cesar.

It's an attempt to turn around a franchise that has yet to reach the MLS post-season. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Nam Nguyen of Toronto is in first place in men's competition after Thursday's short program at the ISU world junior figure skating championships.

Nguyen, 15, earned 72.87 points with Jin Boyang of China second at 71.51 and Uno Shoma of Japan third at 70.67.

"The short program felt awesome," said Nguyen, who is coached by former Canadian skating star Brian Orser. "I was feeling very relaxed throughout the whole program. I took one element at a time and that really paid off."

The highlight was landing the triple Axel.

"The triple Axel felt really big," he said. "I think it was one of the best ones I've ever done, especially in competition. So it was really good that I was able to deliver it out here."

Nguyen won't change a thing for the free skate.

"I'm looking forward to delivering the same performance and to just keep doing what I do in practice," he said.

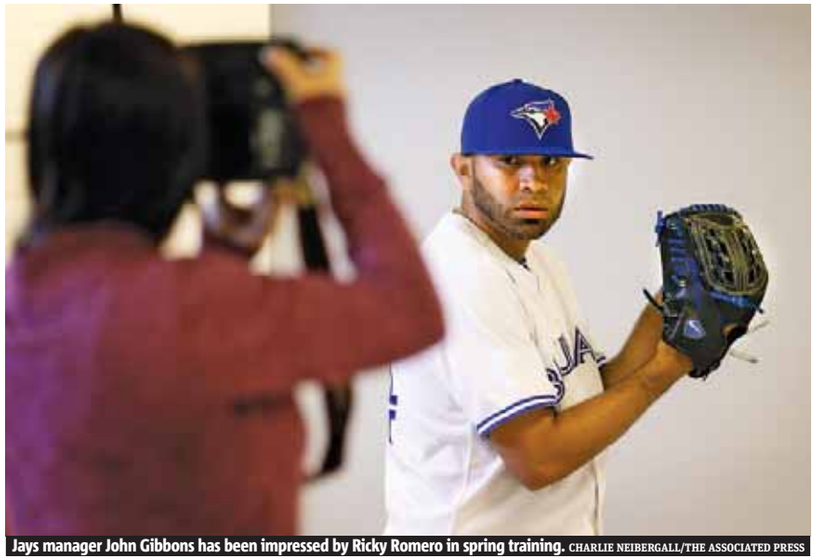
Jays' Romero rebounding well from disastrous 2013

Spring training. Former all-star left-hander pitching his way back into the rotation



Jays manager John Gibbons has been impressed by Ricky Romero in spring training. CHARLIE NEIBERGALL/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

After two disastrous seasons, Ricky Romero is turning heads for the right reasons at Blue Jays spring training.

"The big talk of camp right now is Ricky Romero," Toronto manager John Gibbons said Thursday. "It looks like he's on the way back and that's what excites us all."

Romero limited the Tampa Bay Rays to one run in four innings Wednesday and sports a 1.29 earned-run average in three appearances this spring. Against the Rays, the left-hander was clinical at times with two 1-2-3 innings.

It's a timely turn of fortunes for the Jays, who are looking for help in the bottom end of their starting rotation.

Barring injuries, R.A. Dickey, Mark Buehrle and Brandon Morrow are expected to emerge as the first three starters. Romero is battling the likes of Drew Hutchison, J.A. Happ, Esmil Rogers, Todd Redmond, Kyle Drabek, Marcus Stroman, Sean Nolin and Dustin McGowan for the fourth and fifth spots.

Gibbons made his comments about Romero when asked about the battle for starting pitching jobs. He offered few specifics about the other contenders, saying the fight would go down to the wire, but made a point of singling out Romero.

The Jays manager sees light at the end of the Romero tunnel after some dark days.

"I see a different guy," he said. "That's not easy. You get out on the mound, every eye's on you. You throw a pitch, you walk a batter, you hit a guy or something like that and some of those old demons creep in sometimes when you've been going through that."

Romero says he is not looking ahead to who will fill the openings in the starting rotation.

"I'm just worried about each and every day. The next pitch ... I'm not going to make those decisions, so I'm not really paying attention to it. We'll just see what happens."

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
Because Mars, your ruler, is on good form today, something will happen that has you jumping for joy. Make plans for your professional future but leave yourself some wiggle room in case you want to change your mind.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
Use your imagination today. This is a great time for trying new things, especially on the work front where, if you show you are able to adapt quickly to changing circumstances, you could be promoted.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
Your mind may be full of ideas but for best results you need to focus on the things that will be of most benefit to you. No matter how many ideas you have your energy is limited.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
Let the world know what you are thinking. Some important people will be listening to what you have to say today and if they like what they hear it won't be long before the offers start coming in.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
Are you promising more than you can deliver? Maybe, but your confidence is so high at the moment that the thought of failure does not cross your mind, which in turn makes success more likely.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
You will be tempted to take a risk today and because your ruler Mercury is nicely linked to Mars, planet of action and energy, you may well pull it off.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
If you feel the need to brag about your success, go ahead. It's not often you make noise about how well you've done, so once in a while it's OK.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
This is a good day to take care of the little things that need doing at home and at work. Don't set yourself any grand targets, just get the small stuff done and leave the grand design to sort itself out.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
You have so many options available to you now that it may be hard to know where to start. For best results you should spend as much time as possible in social situations.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
If someone tries to pressure you into doing something you don't approve of today, you must turn them down flat. Yes, you may owe them for favours but conscience comes first.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
With Mercury in your sign linked to Mars your mind will move fast, so fast in fact that it may take a while for the rest of you to catch up! Be careful you don't exhaust yourself — something that can happen to your mind and your body.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
There are signs that something you have dreamed of for months is getting closer and very soon will be your reality. Remember: the more you believe that you deserve success the quicker success is likely to arrive. SALLY BROMPTON
